BOARD OF TRADE WILL ACT AS HOST.

Banquet at Hotel and Program of Speechmaking.

As has been previously announced Grayling is about to be honored by a visit from the members of the wholesale department of the Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce. A special train of Pullmans is due to arrive here at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow, Friday evening.

It is expected that the guests will number about seventy. They will be

AUTOMOBILE HIT BY SWITCH ENGINE.

Car Smashed, 5 Persons Injured, 5 in Hospital.

Five persons were injured and an automobile completely demolished, when the latter was struck by a Michigan Central switch engine at the crossing on the Portage lake road at about 8:00 o'clock last Sunday evening.

The occupants of the auto included Mrs. Charles Dodds of Bay City, Miss Adelia Parker of Midland, and the Messrs. Harvey Dodds and Victor Humphrey, both of Detroit, and Carl Dodds, who is mobilized with the troops at Camp Ferris, and the driver, Wm. McNeal, who conducts an auto livery. The two ladies and the gentlemen from Detroit had come to spend the day with Mrs. Dodds' son, Carl Dodds at Camp Ferris, and were driving in from the camp to spend the evening in Grayling, and then to take the midnight train to return to their respective homes.

When the machine neared the railroad crossing, the switch engine with a string of cars was doing some switching, and the flagman at this crossing gave a signal to the brakeman to split the train in order that the auto might pass. The train was split and the flagman then gave the signal to the auto driver to pass, when just at the same time the engine and cars backed up and struck the auto just as it was about to cross the track. The machine was thrown several feet and turned turtle with the occupants beneath it.

Several people residing near the tracks heard the crash and the screams of the ladies and hurried to the scene, and physicians were called. The car was hurriedly lifted and the injured persons taken in Dr. Insley's auto to Mercy hospital. At the hospital it was found that Mr. McNeal was the most seriously injured of all. He suffered a break of the right leg, and the left leg and other parts of his body were badly bruised. Mrs. Dodds' face was severely scratched, and she received an injury to one of her ears. Miss Parker and the other gentlemen received several bruises on their legs and back—but nothing serious. Carl Dodds escaped without a scratch. The automobile is a total wreck and beyond repair.

This is the first accident that has occurred on this crossing, during the rush that has been on since the mobilization of the troops at Camp Ferris. The flagman, Mr. Smith is a careful watchman and deserves credit for the way he has handled the work here. It appears to have been thru some misunderstanding on the part of the train crew that the accident occurred. It was a lucky escape on the part of the occupants of the auto, and that there are no casualties to report is little short of miraculous.

GUARD DRAWS WEAPON ON JITTER DRIVER.

Lieut. Kirkhoff Now Under Arrest at Camp Ferris.

In a mix-up between Henry Joseph, driver of an auto livery and Lieut. Kirkhoff of the military camp, the latter drew a revolver on Joseph, Friday.

It appears that one of the provost guards, under Lieut. Kirkhoff, on orders from the latter, entered Joseph's livery. At about that time Mr. Joseph arrived with a number of men from the engineering corps and demanded that the guard vacate the livery.

Lieut. Kirkhoff explained that the guard was to go to the Portage lake bridge in a hurry and on urgent business.

Joseph still persisted that he had a load and refused to carry the guard.

Whereupon Kirkhoff drew his pistol and pointed it at Joseph. And now Joseph has entered a complaint with a justice of the peace.

Sheriff Cody and Prosecuting Attorney Smith have investigated the case, going before Gen. Kirk. The latter called the accused guard into his presence and demanded the truth and Kirkhoff admitted that he drew his pistol on Joseph. The Lieutenant was escorted under guard to the guard house to await court martial.

The civic authorities were of the opinion that Kirkhoff should be dealt with in the local courts while Gen. Kirk preferred to have the matter left to the Military authorities.

The co-operation between the local policemen, authorities and the militia has been the very best and it is hoped by both sides that it will continue to be that way. Gen. Kirk is desirous of continuing the provost guard service that is now established in the city and believes that the military department should be privileged, under those conditions, to look after any offenses oc-curing among their own men, and that the civic authorities should deal with the civilians. Unless such arrangements may be made it is intimated that the provost guard will be withdrawn from our streets. This would be unsafe for the people of Grayling for with such large numbers of soldiers continually in town, the civic authorities would be entirely inadequate to cope with them.

HUGE GAINS FOR STATE RAILROADS

MICHIGAN STEAM RAILROADS CLOSE A PROSPEROUS YEAR AS FAR AS EARNINGS ARE CONCERNED.

FREIGHT REVENUES HIGHER

Thirty-five of Michigan's Railroads Report A Net Increase In Freight Earnings Over 1915.

Lansing.—Michigan steam railroads had a prosperous year so far as earnings were concerned for the year ending June 30, 1916. According to figures tabulated from the records filed with the state railroad commission, $15,787,328.10 in earnings was the increase over 1915. This is from the sworn reports of the railroads. Of this amount $3,156,800.29 was in freight earnings and $44,453.87 in revenue receipts, the bulk of the revenue being from other sources.

Thirty-five of Michigan's railroads reported a net increase of $3,181,742.30 in freight earnings over 1915, while but seven railroads reported a decrease in freight earnings, amounting to $25,263.91.

Twenty-nine railroads reported increases in passenger earnings amounting to $32,788.02 showing net increase in freight and passenger earnings of $3,600,934.16.

Some idea of the vast amount of business transacted by the steam railroads of the state can be gleaned from the tabulated reports which show a total of $85,434,268.41 in earnings from all sources for the steam railroads operating in Michigan during 1916, as compared to $69,649,940.31 for 1915.

The increases in passenger earnings the Michigan Central has the best showing to its credit with $23,761.55 in increased earnings over 1915, while the Pere Marquette ranks second with $10,615.52 increased passenger earnings. Other roads showing substantial increases in passenger earnings for the year were: Detroit & Mackinac, $10,778.11; Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, $32,641.92; Wabash, $12,342.21; Copper Range, $9,422.30; Milwaukee & St. Paul, $8,385.89; Chicago & Northwestern, $10,989.35; Ann Arbor, $8,321.21; Grand Trunk Western, $1,871.67; Detroit & Grand Haven & Muskegon, $11,433.43.

The two principal railroads showing a decrease in passenger receipts for the year were the Grand Rapids & Indiana, with a decrease of $8,055.55 from its 1915 figures, and the New York Central, decrease, $22,688.94.

As regards increased revenues in freight earnings, the Michigan Central, first in increased passenger earnings, gave way to the Pere Marquette in freight earning increases, the road low in the amount of revenue showing a net increase in freight earnings over 1915 of $654,102.98, with the Chicago & Northwestern second with increases of $498,873.85 and the Grand Trunk third with $372,343.99 increase. The Michigan Central ranked fourth in freight increase revenue, had, however, to its credit an increase of $145,142.23.

Other of the principal railroads showing increases in freight revenues were: Detroit & Mackinac, $56,114.23; Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, $120,613.41; New Grand Rapids & Indiana, $107,412.09; New York Central, $88,56; Wabash, $211,035.85; Copper Range, $29,037.41; Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, $9,927.92; Ann Arbor, $11,581.44; Detroit & Grand Haven & Milwaukee, $104,333.24.

The Michigan steam railroads showing a decrease in total earnings from all sources during 1916 as compared to the 1915 period were as follows:

Escanaba & Lake Superior, $263,348.53 in 1916, as compared to $305,119.26 in 1915; Traverse City railroad, $8,758.44 in 1916, $78,701.53 in 1915; Detroit & Charlevoix, $63,551.62 in 1916, $78,707.40 in 1915; Traverse City, Leelanau & Manistee, $31,973.32 in 1916, and $36,107.70 in 1915; Waukegan Terminal, $26,773.40 in 1916, as compared to $27,826.33 in 1915.

Some of the almost extraordinary increases in earnings included the Lake Superior & Ishpeming, which forged ahead from $350,733.02 in 1915 to $602,501.14 in 1916, and the Chicago & Northwestern whose earnings in 1915 were $8,119,195.59, and jumped to $11,119,231.38 in 1916, an increase of $1,333,035.79, or nearly 50 per cent.

RELIEF FOR DEPENDENTS

The Appropriation Made By Congress for Soldier Families Available.

MUST ALLOW CO-OPERATION OF U. S. TROOPS TO SUPPRESS VILLA AND HIS BANDITS.

U. S. CONFEREES DECIDE

Evident Need of More Firmness and the Active Use of the Army To Secure Better Conditions.

New London, Conn.—Gen. Carranza must consent to the co-operation of American troops in fighting Villa and his bandits who infest Mexico.

The American delegates came to this conclusion after three weeks of discussion. The Mexican envoys have placed the entire situation before the first chief and expect a prompt reply.

The factors that have convinced the Americans that Carranza is utterly unable to pacify Mexico without the military assistance of the United States are these:

1. Villa's renewed depredations in Chihuahua. Despite the conflicting statements of Gen. Bell and Gen. Trevino, the Americans are satisfied that Villa is a dangerous element.

2. Carranza's inability to check other brigands who are killing and looting in Northern Mexico.

3. The demoralization of the Carranza military organization that Villa forces were able to make a surprise attack on Chihuahua.

4. Limitation of Carranza's influence to the railroads. It has been revealed that although the first chief is now in nominal control of the chief railroad lines and railroad cities, he finds himself practically helpless to extend his authority over the more inaccessible regions.

5. A rapidly depreciating currency which some of the Carranza soldiers are refusing to accept. These troops are said to be on the verge of mutiny.

Since the conference began the Mexican delegates have become more reconciled to the need of this nation's assistance, but they find themselves unable to bring Gen. Carranza to this way of thinking.

THE AUTOMOBILE LICENSE

Total of 143,550 Registered in Michigan and 8,185 Motorcycle Licenses Issued.

Lansing.—There is every indication now that the year 1916 will set a big record for the state registration of autos. When the licenses were first ordered a year ago the state officials

Chicago and New York lead in the

In the cities from which reports

Separate Skirts, in Almost Any Number of Models, Are a Feature of the Season, as Their Popularity Never Seems to Wane—
Two Millinery Models That Are Somewhat Different From the Ordinary.

The separate-skirt, like the shirt-waist, seems to return every season. Like perennial flowers, it is sure of welcome. Among the new models for fall and winter there are many made of plain and barred woolsens, a good number in plain fabrics, and few stripes. This is simply a reaction from the all-prevailing stripes of midsummer. As a rule colors are subdued, by comparison with the bright and often violent color-contrasts in summer skirts. But this does not signify that they are dull.

The introduction of cross bars of white or black on fabrics that show color-contrasts in plaid or checks gives them life and sparkle. Piping of a plain color, matching the cross-bar, adds a happy touch to the finish of their skirts. This is apparent in the skirt pictured.

This model is made with the front cut on the straight of the goods and the back on the bias. Both pieces are attached to a fitted yoke cut on the straight and piped with plain white to match the cross bar. The yoke is exceedingly full and has a crown of ruffles, like the picture has a crown of velvet and a band of ruffles.

It is one of many two-color shapes.

There are various color-combinations, and occasionally a light and a dark shade of one color are combined in this way. On almost any of them a spray of fancy ostrich, like in the pic-

HOSPITAL TAG DAY WAS BIG SUCCESS.

Nurses and Workers Collect about $335.00.

Nurses from Mercy hospital and members of the Hospital Aid society started out early Tuesday morning armed with Mercy hospital tags, for this was Hospital day in Grayling, and offered tags to all who cared to contribute in the interest of the local institution.

The day was clear and bright and the people were in a congenial spirit. Almost every person approached, gladly purchased a tag, giving amounts ranging from one cent to several dollars.

A large delegation of ladies visited the military camp and were received cordially, as may be expected, and received liberal contributions from everyone, from brigade officers to the newest recruits. The brigade officers, to further show their good will, invited the ladies to have dinner at headquarters.

In town also the collectors received splendid support.

In the evening there was a charity ball in the School gymnasium. This proved to be one of the most enjoyable crowds that ever congregated at the gymnasium.

Fully 190 tickets were sold.

Music was furnished by the 33rd Regimental orchestra of eleven pieces. This orchestra was made up of musicians from the 33rd Regiment band and furnished complimentary. Dancing began at 9:00 p. m. and continued to 1:00 o'clock.

During intermission refreshments were served in the dining room. It was an enjoyable party from start to finish, everybody entering in for a good time.

The proceeds received from the sale of tags and from the party amounted to about $335.00. The total expenses for the entire affair were about $45.00 and a balance of about $290.00 is left to turn over to Mercy hospital. Herefore several of the nurses and the ladies of the Hospital aid had sold tags at Frederic, Waters, Roscommon and a few other places, but this year the sale of tags was confined to Grayling and Portage lake alone, and the ladies feel that they did very much better this year in proportion to former tag days. They wish to extend their sincere thanks to those who assisted to make the affair a success, and especially the 33rd Regimental band, who furnished music for the dancing at the charity ball.

Senior-Junior Party.

The Seniors and Juniors opened the school season of pleasure, by giving a dancing party and luncheon in the gymnasium of the High school building last Friday evening. There were about 100 present and the guests included, the members of the faculty, sophomores, freshmen, and each member of the classes had the privilege of inviting one friend outside of school, making up most pleasing party.

The guests were invited to arrive at 8:30 o'clock and soon after their arrival Clark's orchestra started playing and the young folks entered into the merriment of the evening, and thus began one of the most enjoyable of the school affairs.

Later in the evening the guests enjoyed a tempting scrumptious luncheon, after which dancing was resumed for a short time until the orchestra began playing that beautiful ballad "Home Sweet Home," and then the young folks reluctantly left for their homes.

Everyone said it was one of the most enjoyable parties they had attended.

Planning a vacation is great sport; paying for it is painful.

WOMAN CAN VOTE WITHOUT TELLING AGE.

By this time the dove of peace is shivering atop the North pole.

Some men assume a humble demeanor in an egotistic manner.

We all take a lot of punishment from experience and then go back for more.

These early morning hours are delightful, but one loses sleep trying to enjoy them.

The man who can cut bait is quite as essential as the one who tells the fish stories.

Any person who really loves children can pick up a sticky baby without a simile.

The man who lost three toes trying to start his motorcycle certainly "got his foot in it."

Modern inventories are like the counsel and which set forth in support of the judge's ruling, "the question did not arise."

"The particular years of the voter's age, so long as he or she is over 21, is utterly immaterial. Even if the statute required the exact age it will not be necessary to follow it with precision, which is both meaningless and useless."

"It has been suggested that the giving of the exact age was intended to be a further method of identification. I am not of that opinion. It might serve to differentiate between a man of 22 and one of 60, but in comparatively extreme cases, as a means of identification, it would be a clumsy one."

ABOUT DRUGS

There are two classes of druggists and two kinds of drugs that are sold to the public.

1. The druggist who is altogether on the "make" and who sells cheap and stale drugs at full prices.

2. The druggist who is on the "square" and who sells only pure and guaranteed drugs at no increase in price.

This drug store is on the "square" in its every sale and its every act. There are no cheap drugs in our stock, and no stale ones, and we never substitute.

When you bring a physician's prescription to this store you get exactly what that physician intends you to have—no more or no less.

THE LONE STAR RANGER

This is a story about the Texas Plains People

By ZANE GREY

SYNOPSIS.

The time of the story: about 1875. The place: The Texas cow country. The chief characters: Buck Duane, a young man who has inherited just to kill; MacNelly, his uncle, a ranger; Jim Fletcher, a short-tempered, drunken bully and is forced to flee to the wild country where he joins Blane's outlaw band; here, an amiable rustler, he falls in love with Jim's young wife, who has been abducted and sold to Blane for a bad fate. They determine to rescue the girl, restore her to civilization. But she has no recognition, and is supporting the outlook to Buck. Buck is killed. Buck kills Blane and is dangerously wounded by MacNelly, but escapes with Jim's young wife. Jim Fletcher, Buck's wife sees her again, but kills her. Duane barely escapes death at the hands of Jim Fletcher, who crime he now committed. He goes to see Captain MacNelly of the Rangers.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

Duane averted his face a moment, hesitated, till the swelling left his throat, and then said, "It's worth what I went through to-day to hear that."

"I can imagine how you feel about it. When I was in the way—but let's get down to the business of this meeting."

He pulled his chair close to Duane's. "You've had word more than once in the last two years that I wanted to see you, why didn't you hunt me up?"

"I supposed you imagined me one of those gunfighters who couldn't take dare and expected me to ride up to your camp and be arrested."

"But that was natural, I suppose," went on MacNelly. "You didn't know me, otherwise you would have come. I've been a long time getting to you. But the nature of my job, as far as you're concerned, made no exceptions. Duane, you're aware of the hard name you bear all over the Southwest?"

"Once in a while I'm jarred into realizing," replied Duane.

"It's the hardest, lauging Murrell and Cheshole on the Texas border. But there's this difference—Murrell in his day was known to deserve his infamous name's Cheshole in his day also. But I've found hundreds of men in southwest Texas, where your friends, who swear you never committed a crime, The farther south I get the clearer this becomes. What want to know is the truth. Have you ever done anything criminal? Tell me the truth, Duane. It won't make any difference in my plan. And when I say crime I mean what I would call crime, or any reasonable Texas."

"That way my hands are clean," replied Duane.

"You never held up a man, robbed a store for grub, stole a horse when you needed him bad—never anything like that."

"Something I always kept out of that, just when pressed the hardest."

"Duane, I'm glad!" MacNelly exclaimed, gripping Duane's hand. "Glad for your mother's sake! But, all the same, in spite of this, you are a Texas outlaw accountable to the state. You're perfectly aware that under existing circumstances, if you fall into the hands of the law, you'd probably hang, at least go to jail for a long term."

"That's what kept me on the dodge all those years," replied Duane.

"Certainly," MacNelly's eyes narrowed and glittered. His muscles along his brown cheeks set hard and tense. He leaned close to Duane, laid snowy, pressing fingers upon Duane's knee.

"Listen to this," he whispered hoarsely. "If I place a pardon in your hand—make you a free, honest citizen once more, clear your name of infamy, make your mother, your sister proud of you—you will swear yourself to a service, may service I demand of you?"

Duane sat stock still, stunned.

Slowly, more persistently, with show of earnest agitation, Captain MacNelly reiterated his startling query.

"My God!" burst from Duane. "What's this? MacNelly, you can't be in earnest?"

"Never more so in my life. I've a deep game. I'm playing it square. What do you say?"

He rose to his feet, Duane, as if impelled, rose with him. Ranger and outlaw then locked eyes that searched each other's souls. In MacNelly's Duane read truth, strong, fiery purpose, hope, even gladness and a fugitive mounting assurance of victory.

Twice Duane endeavored to speak, failed of all save a hasty, incoherent sound, until, forcing back a flood of speech, he found a voice.

"Any service? Every service! MacNelly, I give my word," said Duane.

A light played over MacNelly's face, warning out all the grim darkness. He held out his hand. Duane met it with his in a clasp that meant unconsciously give in moments of stress.

When they unclasped and Duane stepped back to drop into a chair, MacNelly fumbled for a cigar and lighting it, turned to his visitor, now calm and cool. He had the look of a man who had justly won something at considerable cost. His next move was to take long leather case from his pocket and extract from it several folded papers.

"Here's your pardon from the Governor," he said, quietly. "You'll see, when you look it over, that it's conditional. When you sign this paper I have here the condition will be met."

He smoothed out the paper, handed Duane a pen, ran his forefinger along a dotted line.

Duane's hand was shaky. Years had passed since he had held a pen. It was with difficulty that he achieved his signature. Buckley Duane—how strange the name looked to him.

"Right here ends the career of Buck Duane, outlaw and gun-fighter," said MacNelly; and, seating himself, he took the pen from Duane's fingers and wrote several lines in several places upon the paper. Then, with a smile he handed it to Duane.

"That makes you a member of Company A, Texas Rangers."

"Any Business Here?"

eyes staring into the blackness, marvelling over the strange events of the day. And as he lay there, with the approach of sleep finally dimming the vividness of his thought, a full of mystery, shadowy faces floated in the blackness around him, haunting him as he had always been haunted.

It was broad daylight when he awoke. MacNelly was calling him to breakfast.

The rangers were eating in a circle round a tarpaulin spread upon the ground.

"Fellows," said MacNelly, "shake hands with Buck Duane. He's on secret ranger service for me. Service that'll likely make you all jump soon! Mind you, keep mum about it."

The rangers surprised Duane with a roaring greeting, the warmth of which he soon divined was divided between pride of his acquisition to their ranks and congeniality to meet, but silent service of which their captain hinted.

They were jolly, wild fellows, with just enough gravity in their welcome to show Duane their respect and appreciation, while not forgetting his lone-wolf record. When he had seated himself in that circle, now one of them, a feeling subtle and uplifting pervaded him.

After the meal Captain MacNelly drew Duane aside.

"Here's the money. Mate it goes far as you can. Write me care of the adjutant at Austin. I don't have to warn you to be careful where you mail letters. Ride a hundred, two hundred miles, if necessary, or go clear to El Paso."

MacNelly stopped with an air of duality, and then Duane slowly rose.

"I'll start at once," he said, extending his hand to the Captain. "I wish I'd like to thank you!"

"Hell, man! Don't thank me!" replied MacNelly, crushing the proffered hand. "I've sent a lot of good men to their deaths, and maybe you're another. But, as I've said, you're one chance in a thousand. And, by Heaven! I'd hate to be Cheshole's own boss. You must find some way to let me know when I and my rangers are needed. The plan is to break up Cheshole's gang. It's the strongest, the worst outlaw of the times. He's more than ruster. He's Cheshole and his gang who are operating on the banks. No one seems to have seen him to know what he looks like."

"I assume, of course, that you are a stranger to the country we dominate. It's five hundred miles west of your ground. There's a little town over there called Fruthole. It's the most of a ranger gang. They rustle and murder at will. Nobody knows who the leader is. I want you to find out. Well, whatever way you decide is best you will proceed to net upon. You are your own boss. You must find some way to let me know when I and my rangers are needed. The plan is to break up Cheshole's gang. It's the strongest, the worst outlaw of the times. He's more than ruster. He's Cheshole and his gang who are operating on the banks. No one seems to have seen him to know what he looks like."

"That's so much more than I've dared to hope."

"Well, it's settled, then. I'll give you money for expenses. You'll start as soon as you like—the sooner the better. I hope to think of other suggestions especially about commanding with me."

"Leave that to me," interrupted Captain MacNelly. "If you lose your life out there I'll see your name cleared—the service you render known. You can rest assured of that."

"I am satisfied," replied Duane.

"Listen to this," he whispered hoarsely. "If I place a pardon in your hand—make you a free, honest citizen once more, clear your name of infamy, make your mother, your sister proud of you—you will swear yourself to a service, may service I demand of you?"

"Listen to this," he whispered hoarsely. "If I place a pardon in your hand—make you a free, honest citizen once more, clear your name of infamy, make your mother, your sister proud of you—you will swear yourself to a service, may service I demand of you?"

He pulled his chair close to Duane's. Ranger and outlaw then locked eyes that searched each other's souls. In MacNelly's Duane read truth, strong, fiery purpose, hope, even gladness and a fugitive mounting assurance of victory.

Twice Duane endeavored to speak, failed of all save a hasty, incoherent sound, until, forcing back a flood of speech, he found a voice.

"Any Business Here?"

eyes staring into the blackness, marvelling over the strange events of the day. And as he lay there, with the approach of sleep finally dimming the vividness of his thought, a full of mystery, shadowy faces floated in the blackness around him, haunting him as he had always been haunted.

It was broad daylight when he awoke. MacNelly was calling him to breakfast.

The rangers were eating in a circle round a tarpaulin spread upon the ground.

"Fellows," said MacNelly, "shake hands with Buck Duane. He's on secret ranger service for me. Service that'll likely make you all jump soon! Mind you, keep mum about it."

The rangers surprised Duane with a roaring greeting, the warmth of which he soon divined was divided between pride of his acquisition to their ranks and congeniality to meet, but silent service of which their captain hinted.

They were jolly, wild fellows, with just enough gravity in their welcome to show Duane their respect and appreciation, while not forgetting his lone-wolf record. When he had seated himself in that circle, now one of them, a feeling subtle and uplifting pervaded him.

After the meal Captain MacNelly drew Duane aside.

BUSINESS EXPANDING DAILY

GET THE HABIT

Many people have been asking why my fall ad hasn't been in circulation, having given you warning in my last ad to wait for this one, I would have something to say. I have been weeks trying to take time enough to say what I am saying in this ad and how I came to get many of the snappy bargains I here offer you. I was away two weeks and never had a harder time getting my collection to place before my customers, as stated in my last issue. Well bought is half sold. Merchants from nearly all parts of the world using our markets this year with ready money jump at any bargains offered in good merchandise, you will readily see how hard it is for the smaller merchant to get the selection his locality may need and at prices that startle a customer these times at first sight of the ad, when people gaze at an ad and know it's real. Now listen, talk is just as cheap as it ever was. While all other classes of goods and merchandise have advanced. Read every word of this bill, bring the bill with you and if it don't mean dollars and cents to you I stand ready to pay your fare both ways on any reasonable amount of merchandise you may purchase at my store. This ad should have been out over three weeks ago, as stated. It is necessary to receive the goods before testing and be sure I was right and then go ahead. This store is filled to the ceiling with seasonable goods and let me say right here, if your family is ever so large I can suit you with any kind or quality that is needed. So don't be afraid to drive your car 25 to 35 miles and be sure and tell me where you are from as this store is for the business and means business.

U. of M. Football Team Near at Hand.

With the first game of the Michigan football season but two weeks away, Head Coach Yost opened the early training period of the Wolverines, last week. Two dozen men appeared in uniforms for the initial workout, and this number will be increased to 35 before the end of the week. For the first few days work will be confined to kicking and passing the ball, after which the real grind of daily scrimmages will begin.

Yost will have five assistants on his coaching staff, Pontius, Douglass, McGinnis, Cateat and Matson working under the direction of the head coach. Harry Tuthill, trainer of the Detroit Tigers during the baseball season, has complete charge of the conditioning of the men in the running.

Michigan has seven veterans to start the season. Captain Aultsch and Smith in the back field, Dunne and Waler at ends, Weske and Rehor at guards, and Niemann at center.

This leaves but four places to fill, and Yost will devote the greater part of his time during the coming two weeks in finding a quarterback, halfback and two tackles. Sparks, who captained the freshman eleven last year, looks like the best bet for quarterback, but the fight for the open halfback and line jobs shows several seasons men in the running.

The Wolverines have an ideal schedule this fall, the preliminary games working up gradually to the final battles with Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania.
